

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a list or account, with several lines of entries. The text is mirrored across the center fold of the page, suggesting it was written on a single sheet that was folded in half. The entries are difficult to decipher due to the cursive style and fading, but appear to include names and possibly numerical values.